1 NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

2 TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

3 PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that, pursuant to Rule 3.764 of the California Rules of 4 Court, on May 2, 2018 at 10:00 a.m. in Department 307 of the above-entitled Court, 5 located at 600 South Commonwealth Avenue, Los Angeles, CA 90005, Plaintiffs Kevin 6 Shenkman and Mary Ruth Hughes (“Plaintiffs”) will and hereby do request that the Court 7 certify their proposed subclasses.

8 This motion is brought on the grounds that the proposed subclasses are readily 9 ascertainable based on objective criteria and are numerous, and claimants can be identified
10 by defendants AutoZone Parts, Inc., AutoZone, Inc., and AutoZone.com, Inc.’s 11 (collectively, “AutoZone”) records. Within each subclass, common issues predominate as 12 members possess materially identical small-dollar claims, the outcome of which will turn 13 on the same common actions and representations by AutoZone. Plaintiffs have claims 14 typical of both subclasses and, along with their counsel, will adequately protect their 15 interests. Finally, the class action device is not only the superior method for adjudicating 16 this dispute, it is the only feasible manner of doing so.

1 MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

2 I. INTRODUCTION

3 AutoZone promised millions of Californians that if they enrolled in AutoZone 4 Rewards, its loyalty program, and made five $20 purchases, they would “Get $20” to 5 spend at AutoZone (the “Rewards Program”). AutoZone’s records confirm that AutoZone 6 Rewards provides an enormous benefit to AutoZone: as of 2014, AutoZone made over $3 7 billion worth of sales through AutoZone Rewards with a margin of $1.6 billion. AutoZone
8 decided, however, that its California consumers should not also benefit from AutoZone 9 Rewards despite its express and material inducements to them.

10 In 2014, AutoZone implemented a “National Plan Conversion,” explicitly designed 11 to “eliminat[e] long-term liability” by unilaterally voiding approximately 750,000 $20
12 Rewards and millions of Reward Credits earned by its customers through purchases made 13 before AutoZone gave them any reason at all to know that Reward Credits or Rewards 14 would expire. Instead of providing $20 of store credit (the “Reward”) once customers 15 made five $20 purchases, as it had promised in order to drive sales, AutoZone caused each 16 $20 purchase (the “Reward Credit”) to expire after twelve months and each Reward to 17 expire after 90 days. AutoZone applied the conversion retroactively to Rewards and 18 Reward Credits already in its customers’ accounts, thereby materially changing the terms 19 of the offer its customers had accepted.

20 AutoZone’s changes also were designed so that the vast majority of its active 21 customers would not be able to earn and redeem the Reward they were promised.
22 According to AutoZone’s records, the National Plan Conversion prevents 85% of 23 AutoZone’s active Rewards Members from earning Rewards and up to 30% of the 24 members who earn a Reward lose it before they redeem it.

25 Nonetheless, AutoZone continues to advertise the Rewards Program, without 26 making any meaningful reference to these material limitations. It still promises a simple 27 $20 Reward when customers make five $20 purchases, without disclosing the material 28 limitations of that promise. This causes its customers, such as Plaintiffs, to continue to

1 make purchases, believing they will earn a $20 Reward only to have the Reward Credits
2 expire. Since the conversion, California Rewards Members have seen millions of dollars 3 more worth of Credits and Rewards expire.

4 To remedy this, Plaintiffs bring a class action, a mechanism particularly well-suited 5 to these facts. AutoZone admits that it provided all of its customers with “basically the 6 same” message regarding the “monetary incentive” associated with its Rewards Program 7 and admits this message was important for its customers to consider in choosing to shop at 8 AutoZone. AutoZone further admits that before its National Plan Conversion, customers 9 making purchases at AutoZone had no reason to know that Rewards or Rewards Credit 10 would expire. AutoZone also admits that after the conversion, it continued to use 11 advertising that did not disclose the time limits, and that the notice it did provide to its 12 customers of the new conditions had glaring, significant errors.

13 To address AutoZone’s conduct, Plaintiffs bring causes of action for breach of 14 contract and contractual breach of the duty of good faith and fair dealing (in the 15 alternative) (First and Second Causes of Action), violation of the Consumers Legal 16 Remedies Act (the "CLRA") (Third Cause of Action), Violation of the False Advertising 17 Law (Fourth Cause of Action), Violation of the Unfair Competition Law (Fifth Cause of 18 Action), and Fraud (Sixth Cause of Action). Plaintiffs request that this Court¹ certify two 19 subclasses, differentiated to address any differences the inadequate notice AutoZone 20 claims to have provided prior its conversion might create:

21 Subclass 1 (To pursue all causes of Action):

22 All persons who: (1) were enrolled in a 5/20/20 plan through an AutoZone store
23 (and not online) in California at the time of the National Plan Conversion; (2)
24 made purchase(s) of over $20 from AutoZone in California using their Rewards 25 account on or before July 31, 2014; and (3) whose $20 Reward(s) and/or 26 Reward Credit(s) earned through the purchase(s) on or before July 31, 2014

27 ¹ AutoZone has failed to produce several categories of responsive discovery that it 28 repeatedly represented would be forthcoming, even up until days before this brief was due.
Plaintiffs believe they have ample evidence to move for class certification regardless and would be prejudiced by further delay. Plaintiffs will separately move to compel this information. Plaintiffs request that if the Court concludes the present motion lacks sufficient evidentiary support, that it grant their motion to compel and continue the issue of class certification until such time as AutoZone has complied with its discovery obligations.

1 were deemed expired and never reinstated by AutoZone.²
2 Subclass 2 (To pursue the Third, Fourth, and Fifth Cause of Action):

3 All persons who: (1) were enrolled in a 5/20/20 plan through an AutoZone store
4 (and not online) in California at the time of the National Plan Conversion; (2)
5 made purchase(s) of over $20 from AutoZone in California using their Rewards
6 account after July 31, 2014; and (3) whose $20 Reward(s) and/or Reward 7 Credit(s) earned through the purchase(s) after July 31, 2014 were deemed 8 expired and never reinstated by AutoZone.

9 Plaintiffs satisfy the class certification requirements for both subclasses. The 10 subclasses are readily ascertainable based on objective criteria and are numerous, and 11 claimants can be identified through AutoZone's records. Within each subclass, common 12 issues predominate as members possess materially identical small-dollar claims, the 13 outcome of which will turn on the same common actions and representations by AutoZone.
14 Plaintiffs have claims typical of both subclasses and, along with their counsel, will 15 adequately protect their interests. Finally, the class action device is not only the superior 16 method for adjudicating this dispute, it is the only feasible manner of doing so.

17 II. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

18 A. Class Members Enrolled In The Same 5/20/20 Rewards Program In The 19 Same Manner Based On the Same Messaging

20 To encourage customers to make purchases at AutoZone, AutoZone has long 21 maintained a customer loyalty program, AutoZone Rewards. (Clawson³ 17:15-21; Pawlak 22 139:12-140:8.) As of 2014, sales through AutoZone Rewards exceeded $3 billion annually, 23 with a margin to AutoZone of approximately $1.6 billion. (Declaration of Seth Yohalem 24 ("Yohalem Decl."), Ex. M at AZ 300827). At all operative times, members of AutoZone 25 Rewards ("Rewards Members") "earned" a Reward Credit when they made a qualifying

26 ² The proposed subclasses do not include the less than 2% of California Rewards Members 27 who were enrolled in other versions of the program as of the National Plan Conversion or 28 the small number who enrolled online prior to the National Plan Conversion. (Yohalem Decl., Ex. D at Amended Answer to Interrog. 10; Pawlak 225:14-226:5.) True and correct copies of relevant portions of Kevin Clawson's and Bernadette Pawlak's deposition transcripts are attached as Exhibits A and B, respectively, to the Declaration of Seth Yohalem. References to those transcripts are made directly in this brief.

³ From the end of 2013 to 2016, Kevin Clawson was the marketing manager for AutoZone
Rewards. (Clawson 20:19-23; 21:9-15; 75:11-15.) From January 2014 to the present, Bernadette Pawlak was the director responsible for AutoZone Rewards. (Pawlak 11:10-17; 13:12-21).

1 purchase of over $20; when they acquired five (5) such Reward Credits, they “earned” a 2 $20 Reward – a $20 store credit that could be used at AutoZone. (Clawson Dep. 18:3-18, 3 52:6-13, 239:1-18; Yohalem Decl., Ex. C at AZ 75 and Ex. D at Amended Answer to 4 Interrog. 10.) Although AutoZone maintained different versions of its Rewards Program 5 throughout the country, this case is limited to class members who were enrolled in the 6 5/20/20 version of the program in California. Under this version of the program, until 7 AutoZone’s National Plan conversion, neither Reward Credits nor $20 Rewards expired.
8 (Yohalem Decl., Ex. C at AZ 75, Ex. D at Amended Answer to Interrog. 10, Ex. E at AZ 9 49943.) All putative class members enrolled in the AutoZone Rewards Program and made 10 qualifying purchases from AutoZone in the same standard manner. (Pawlak 31:18-32:8; 11 Clawson 42:19-23.)

12 At all relevant times, across all advertising channels, AutoZone provided class 13 members with a “consistent message,” concerning the “value proposition” of AutoZone 14 Rewards: “Get $20 When You Make 5 Qualifying Purchases of $20 or More.” (Yohalem 15 Decl., Ex. F at AZ 382868; Clawson 193:11-18; Pawlak 22:23-24:8.) Indeed:

16 Q. From personal knowledge in your role as marketing manager, was the message 17 of make 5 purchases and earn $20 the consistent message that was provided to customers across all AutoZone's advertising channels?

18 A. Yes.

19 Q. And while the individual ads may have varied, the message was basically the 20 same, right?

21 A. That is correct.

22 (Clawson 193:11-18l; see also Pawlak 14:8-21:14; 22:10-20; Yohalem Decl., Exs. G, and 23 H at Answer to Special Interrog. 24.) AutoZone recognizes this value proposition as the 24 “monetary incentive” of the program. (Clawson 17:22-28:2.)

25 AutoZone claims that the promises made by its Rewards Program were limited by 26 “Terms and Conditions” for the program. However, these “Terms and Conditions” were 27 never agreed to by AutoZone’s customers. As part of the standardized enrollment process, 28 no one was required to sign any document or otherwise agreed to the “Terms and

1 Conditions” to enroll in AutoZone’s Rewards Program. (Clawson 40:13-19; Pawlak 30:6-2 19.) Nor did anyone agree to the “Terms and Conditions” when they made purchases.
3 (Pawlak 32:9-34:1.) AutoZone did not even require its employees to provide the “Terms 4 and Conditions” to its customers unless they were specifically requested by the customer.
5 (Pawlak 35:15-25.) Even then, the “Terms and Conditions” were merely printed on the 6 back of tear sheets in 7 or 8-point font. (Yohalem Decl., Ex. I; Clawson 183:16-21.)
7 AutoZone’s contemporaneous documents confirm that “Terms and conditions are not 8 accepted at time of enrollment in store” and that this is an area where its “legal 9 compliance” is an “industry standard[s]... where we suck.” (Yohalem Decl., Ex. L at AZ 10 365818, Ex. U at AZ 350386 [emphasis added].) In any event, agreed to or not, these so-11 called “Terms and Conditions” were the same for everyone. (Yohalem Decl., Ex. D at 12 Amended Answer to Interrog. 10.)

13 B. AutoZone Materially Changes Its 5/20/20 Rewards Program

14 In late 2014, AutoZone materially changed its 5/20/20 Rewards Program as part of 15 a long-planned “National Plan Conversion.” (Yohalem Decl., Ex. C; Clawson 78:21-24; 16 131:21-132:9.) Under the new National Plan, Reward Credits “expired” after 12 months 17 and Rewards “expired” after 90 days if unredeemed. (Clawson Dep.79:4-11; Yohalem 18 Decl., Ex. L at AZ 76, 80).

19 By AutoZone’s deliberate design, these changes made it harder for members of its 20 5/20/20 program to both earn and redeem Rewards. As AutoZone knew at the time, the 21 average AutoZone Rewards Member makes only 3.8 purchases per year and all relevant 22 segments of its customers make fewer than five purchases of over $20 per year. (Yohalem 23 Decl., Ex. M at AZ 30828, Ex. N at AZ 72260.) Thus, after AutoZone changed its 24 program to require the five purchases to be made within a year, “85% of active Loyalty 25 members never earn a reward in a 12-month timeframe due to infrequent purchase activity 26 (<5 transactions).” (Yohalem Decl., Ex. O at AZ 241454, Ex. P at AZ 241683; Pawlak 27 180:14-20.) AutoZone’s changes also caused up to 30% of members who earn Rewards to 28 lose them before they can redeem them. (Yohalem Decl., Ex. Q; Pawlak 170:11-17.)

1 Prior to implementing its National Plan Conversion, AutoZone expressly recognized that 2 one of its “benefits” would be to increase “breakage” – dollars earned by Rewards
3 Members which go unredeemed – by millions. (Yohalem Decl., Ex. R at AZ 36647, Ex. S 4 at AZ 46897, Ex. C at AZ 81; Clawson 102:17-20; 111:1-5; 139:23-141:4; Pawlak 58:2-4.)

5 C. AutoZone Imposes Its New Conditions Retroactively

6 AutoZone imposed these new material conditions retroactively on purchases
7 already made before the National Plan Conversion. (Clawson 79:25-80:25.) AutoZone’s 8 new retroactively-imposed conditions caused California Rewards Members to lose 9 millions of Reward Credits and approximately 750,000 $20 Rewards that were earned 10 through purchases before the conversion. (Yohalem Decl., Exs. J at ¶¶ 5-6; K at Amended 11 Responses to Interrogs. 2 and 7.) AutoZone deliberately inflicted this massive loss on its 12 California Rewards Members. For example, AutoZone had planned for its conversion at 13 least two years earlier knowing that “Members in 5/20/20 will have to [sic] most impact to 14 Credit and Rewards Balances.” (Yohalem Decl., Ex. Tat 81071.) Later, using corporate 15 speak for enriching itself at its customers’ expense, AutoZone expressly touted one feature 16 of its National Plan Conversion as being to “better manage program expense by 17 eliminating long-term liability.” (Yohalem Decl., Ex. Rat AZ 36647, Ex. C at AZ 80.)

18 AutoZone admits that the rules governing the time to earn and redeem Rewards 19 were something that “would be important for any customer to consider” when deciding to 20 shop at AutoZone. (Clawson 115:20-116:21; Pawlak 142:5-21.) AutoZone also admits it 21 failed to inform its customers of its known, impending, retroactive change to these rules 22 prior to when it belatedly gave notice of the National Plan Conversion:

23 Q. And so at the time someone made a purchase within the 5/20/20 program prior to 24 the national plan conversion and prior to the notice for the national plan conversion, 25 there's nothing they would have known about the fact that the reward they were 26 earning or the credit they were earning might expire one day; correct?

27 A. Yes. That's how the program worked.

28 (Pawlak 27:4-10; 147:13-24; see also Clawson 164:12-165:15.)

D. AutoZone Fails to Adequately Inform Customers of the Change

1 AutoZone claims that in August 2014, it began providing notice to its customers of 2 the National Plan Conversion. (Yohalem Decl., Ex. K at Amended Answer to Interrog. 5.) 3 However, AutoZone admits that this notice did not create individual issues amongst the 4 members receiving notice:

5 Q. Okay. And for the locations where the 5/20/20 was in place, would everybody 6 have gotten the same message?

7 A. Yes.

8 Q. So there were no differences at least among members who were involved in the 9 5/20/20 plan?

10 A. That's right.

(Pawlak 190:1-7.)

11 This common “notice” was defective. AutoZone did not notify its customers of the 12 program’s changes in the most obvious ways: it did not orally inform customers of the new 13 conditions when they made purchases after the National Plan Conversion (Clawson 94:10-14 14); nor did it use its television or radio advertising to inform its customers of the change 15 for reasons; the director of its Rewards Program cannot explain why. (Pawlak 267:4-7.) 16 AutoZone provided standardized messaging of the change on its customers’ receipts, but 17 the receipts were replete with errors that made that messaging meaningless. The 18 standardized messaging stated that “As of October, you will have 12 months to make 5 19 qualifying purchases of 20 dollars or more to get your 20 dollar reward.” (Shenkman 20 Decl., Ex. 1; Pawlak 124:18-23 [emphasis added].) This suggested the new rules would go 21 into effect the following October. Moreover, “October” itself was inaccurate. (Pawlak 22 134:18-135:15.) This was not an oversight, but rather was because AutoZone “did not 23 have a lot of flexibility.” (Id.) AutoZone also admits its receipts contained another “error” 24 for all class members and showed their credits as of the incorrect date. (Pawlak 123:15-25 23.) Although AutoZone telephoned a small number of its most prized customers to 26 explain the conversion, it did not telephone the vast majority of Rewards Members.
27 (Clawson 208:14-209:15.) AutoZone sent an email to some Rewards Members, but it 28 reached, at most, 3% of Rewards Members - AutoZone concedes that any notice via email

1 or website would have been “minimal.” (Yohalem Decl., Ex. M at AZ 30832; Pawlak 2 260:15-261:14.) AutoZone “likely” did “not” send direct mail notifications to all 3 members. (Pawlak 252:24-253:4).

4 E. AutoZone Continues to Mislead Customers After the Conversion

5 Moreover, even after the National Plan Conversion, AutoZone continued to 6 deceptively market its Rewards Program, using the same message it had used before the 7 change, omitting references to the new material limitations it had imposed. For example, 8 the landing page of the AutoZone Rewards Website stated: “Earn a $20 Reward When 9 You Make 5 Purchases of $20 Or More” without any mention of Rewards or Reward 10 Credits expiring and a mere asterisk saying to “see terms and conditions.” (Yohalem Decl., 11 Ex. W; Clawson 161:20-163:24). AutoZone also continued to run television and internet 12 advertisements which stated that customers would earn a $20 Reward when they made five 13 purchases of $20 or more without any mention of time limitations. (Yohalem Decl., Ex.
14 X.; Pawlak 190:14-200:10.) One television campaign run in 2017, states “Our AutoZone 15 Rewards Program is simple. Spend 20 bucks five times and earn a $20 Reward” without 16 any mention of time limits. (Yohalem Decl. at _.) AutoZone explains this omission as “it’s 17 television...you can get away with about a second.” (Pawlak 192:24-193:5.)

18 F. Plaintiffs’ Experience Was Typical

19 Plaintiffs Mary Ruth Hughes and Kevin Shenkman, a married couple, enrolled in 20 AutoZone Rewards at a 5/20/20 store in California and shopped at AutoZone in order to 21 earn a $20 Reward when they made five purchases of over $20. (Shenkman Decl. ¶¶ 6-22 11; Hughes Decl. ¶¶ 3, 6-8.) According to AutoZone’s records, on July 30, 2014, 23 Plaintiffs made a purchase of over $20 for which a Reward Credit was credited to their 24 account. (Yohalem Decl., Ex. Y at AZ 365.) This was before AutoZone provided any 25 notice of the National Plan Conversion. (Pawlak 147:13-17.) Plaintiffs made four 26 additional purchases subsequent to when AutoZone contends it began providing notice of 27 the changes, culminating on March 1, 2016. (Yohalem Decl., Ex. Y at AZ 364.) Plaintiffs 28 would have earned a $20 Reward but for AutoZone’s changes to its Rewards Program.

1 (Pawlak 122:23-123:4, Yohalem Decl., Ex. Y.) At the time they made each of these 2 purchases, Plaintiffs believed they would earn a $20 Reward when they made five 3 purchases of over $20 and were unaware that either Reward Credits or Rewards would 4 expire. (Shenkman Decl at ¶¶6-10; Hughes Decl. at ¶¶6-8.) However, Plaintiffs did not 5 receive the $20 Reward to which they were entitled, because AutoZone deemed their 6 Reward Credits expired. (Id.; Yohalem Decl., Ex. Y; Shenkman Decl., ¶11.) Plaintiffs 7 would not have made their purchases if they had known that AutoZone could or would 8 cause their Reward or Reward Credits to expire. (Shenkman Decl. ¶¶ 6-10; Hughes Decl.
9 ¶¶6-8.) They bring this case to rectify AutoZone’s misconduct because, without the class 10 action device, millions of misled AutoZone customers like them will have no effective 11 recourse at all. (Shenkman Decl. ¶ 14; Hughes Decl. ¶ 9.)

12 III. ARGUMENT

13 A. Operative Standards For Class Certification

14 To address the risk that small claimants may be left without legal redress, California 15 has an expressed public policy in favor of class actions and directs its courts to use 16 “innovative procedural tools” to make class treatment feasible. Sav-On Drug Stores v.
17 Superior Court (2004) 34 Cal.4th 319, 339-40; Howard Gunty Profit Sharing Plan v.
18 Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal.App.4th 572, 578; Richmond v. Dart Industries, 19 Inc. (1981) 29 Cal.3d 462, 469. “Since the judicial system substantially benefits by the 20 efficient use of its resources, class certification should not be denied so long as the absent 21 class members’ rights are adequately protected.” Richmond, 29 Cal.3d at 474.

22 The court looks to each cause of action separately to determine if it should be 23 certified. See Shelly v. City of L.A. (1995) 36 Cal.App.4th 692, 696; Corbett v. Superior 24 Court (2002) 101 Cal.App.4th 649, 672 (assessing plaintiffs’ causes of action separately 25 for certification). The “use of subclasses is an appropriate device to facilitate class 26 treatment.” Aguiar v. Cintas Corp. No. 2 (2006) 144 Cal.App.4th 121, 134 (citations 27 omitted). The Court is not to determine the merits of the case in determining whether to 28 certify a class and “generally should eschew” deciding “threshold legal or factual

1 questions” unless “resolution of such issues” is necessary for class certification. Brinker
2 Restaurant Corp. v. Superior Court (2012) 53 Cal.4th 1004, 1025; Linder v. Thrifty Oil
3 Co. (2000) 23 Cal.4th 429, 439-440.

4 Plaintiffs seek to certify subclasses for both the CLRA and non-CLRA claims. For 5 CLRA claims, Plaintiffs must show impracticality, that common issues predominate, that 6 Plaintiffs’ claims are typical, and that Plaintiffs will fairly and adequately represent the 7 interests of the class. Cal. Civ. Code § 1781. For non-CLRA claims, Plaintiffs must show 8 that the class action will have “an ascertainable and a well-defined community of interest 9 among class members.” Sav-On Drug Stores, supra, 34 Cal.4th at 326. “The “community 10 of interest” requirement embodies three factors: (1) predominant common questions of law 11 or fact; (2) class representatives with claims or defenses typical of the class; and (3) class 12 representatives who can adequately represent the class.” Id. (citations omitted). For non-13 CLRA claims, Plaintiffs must also show superiority. Caro v. Procter and Gamble Co.
14 (1993) 18 Cal.App.4th 644, 654. These requirements are similar. In re Vioxx Class Cases 15 (2009) 180 Cal.App.4th 116, 128, fn. 12. The primary differences are that certification of 16 CLRA claims is mandatory if the requirements of section 1781 are met and Plaintiffs need 17 not show superiority, whereas the trial court has discretion in certifying a class action 18 under section 382. Id.; Hogya v. Superior Court (1977) 75 Cal.App.3d 122, 134-136; see 19 also Bell v. American Title Ins. (1991) 226 Cal.App.3d 1589, 1603. Plaintiffs satisfy the 20 requirements for certification of both the CLRA and non-CLRA claims.

21 B. Ascertainability and Impracticality Are Satisfied

22 To satisfy the ascertainability requirement, the court need only determine 23 whether the class is readily identifiable. Evans v. Lasco Bathware, Inc., 178 Cal. App. 4th 24 1417,1422 (2009); see also Daar v. Yellow Cab Co., 67 Cal. 2d 695, 706 (1967). Class 25 members are readily identifiable when the class is defined by “objective characteristics” 26 and “common transactional facts.” Evans, 178 Cal. App.4th at 1422. Here, the class is 27 readily identifiable by the following objective characteristics: enrollment location, 28 purchase dates and amounts, and Reward and Credit expirations. AutoZone readily

1 admits that it maintains this information. (Pawlak 120:11-121:23.)

2 The exact number of parties necessary for a class action to meet the impracticality 3 threshold is indefinite, but far below the number of class members here. Vasquez v.
4 Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal.3d 800, 811 (holding that a class of approximately 200 5 persons was sufficiently numerous). In this case, both of the proposed subclasses total 6 millions of potential claims and easily pass this threshold.

7 C. Common Questions Predominate for Each Claim

8 Since the claims of each subclass member will present the same questions, common 9 issues predominate. In determining predominance, “[t]he relevant comparison lies 10 between the costs and benefits of adjudicating plaintiffs' claims in a class action and the 11 costs and benefits of proceeding by numerous separate actions—not between the 12 complexity of a class suit that must accommodate some individualized inquiries and the 13 absence of any remedial proceeding whatsoever.” Nicodemus v. Saint Francis Memorial 14 Hospital (2016) 3 Cal.App.5th 1200, 1219 citing Sav-On Drug Stores, Inc., supra, 34 15 Cal.4th at 339, fn. 10. “A theory of liability that a defendant has a uniform policy that 16 allegedly violates the law is by its nature a common question eminently suited for class 17 treatment.” Nicodemus, 3 Cal.App.5th at 1218 (internal quotations and citations omitted).
18 “Predominance is a comparative concept, and the necessity for class members to 19 individually establish eligibility and damages does not mean individual fact 20 questions predominate.” Sav-On Drug Stores, supra, 34 Cal.4th at 334.
21 Individual issues do not render class certification inappropriate so long as such 22 issues may effectively be managed. Id. Here, individual inquiry is unnecessary because 23 the facts establishing liability are the same for all class members. The only potential 24 defense that arguably distinguishes class members’ claims — AutoZone’s purported notice 25 to the class — is addressed by Plaintiffs’ proposed subclasses.

26 1. Breach of Contract Claims (First and Second Causes of Action)

27 Plaintiffs seek to certify Subclass 1 to pursue breach of contract claims (including 28 an alternative claim for breach of the duty of good faith and fair dealing) based on

1 AutoZone’s failure to provide the benefits it promised through its loyalty program at the 2 time they made their purchases. California courts have recognized that breach of contract 3 cases with far more individual issues than the present case still satisfy predominance. See, 4 e.g., Marler v. E.M. Johansing, LLC (2011) 199 Cal.App.4th 1450, 1463. Federal courts 5 considering cases similar to this one have found class treatment of contract claims 6 appropriate. See, e.g., Sateriale v. RJ Reynolds Tobacco Co. (C.D.Cal. Dec. 19, 2014) No.
7 2:09-cv-08394-CAS(SSx) 2014 U.S.Dist.LEXIS 176858, at *24-28 (certifying breach of 8 contract class based on rewards promised in a customer loyalty program); In re Southwest
9 Airlines Voucher Litig. (N.D.Ill. Aug. 26, 2013), No. 11 C 8176 2013 U.S.Dist.LEXIS 10 120735, at *12-13 aff’d by Levitt v. Southwest Airlines Co. (In re Southwest Airlines 11 Voucher Litig.) (7th Cir. 2015) 799 F.3d 701, 704 (certifying settlement class over 12 objection for breach of contract based on airline’s failure to honor free drink coupons).
13 This Court should reach the same conclusion on similar facts.

14 The elements of breach of contract are: “the existence of the contract, performance 15 by the plaintiff or excuse for nonperformance, breach by the defendant and damages.”
16 First Commercial Mortgage Co. v. Reece (2001) 89 Cal.App.4th 731, 745. These present 17 common issues.

18 AutoZone made the same legally operative offer to the members of Subclass 1 19 when it provided members of Subclass 1 “basically the same” message that they would 20 “get $20” if they made five qualifying purchases of over $20. (Clawson 165:10-16; 21 193:11-18); See generally Sateriale v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (9th Cir. 2012) 697 F.3d 22 777, 785-788 (finding advertisements for a customer loyalty program were an offer to be 23 accepted by performance and collecting numerous authorities providing for same); 24 Donovan v. Rrl Corp. (2001) 26 Cal.4th 261, 266 (published advertisement constituted 25 offer to be accepted by tendering the purchase price). AutoZone admits no members of 26 Subclass 1 had any reason to know at the time of their purchases that Rewards or Reward 27 Credits could expire. (Clawson 164:12-165:15; Pawlak 147:13-24). This makes 28 AutoZone’s offer common.

1 In turn, all members of Subclass 1 accepted AutoZone’s offer and performed on the 2 contract in the same manner when they made purchases of over $20 from AutoZone using 3 their Rewards account. Civ. Code, § 1584; Sateriale at 785-788. Their subjective views 4 of AutoZone Rewards are irrelevant. Tribeca Companies, LLC v. First American Title Ins.
5 Co. (2015) 239 Cal.App.4th 1088, 1111 (internal citations and quotations omitted)
6 (undisclosed understanding is irrelevant to contract meaning). Thus, this too is common.

7 AutoZone breached the contract and each member of Subclass 1 lost a Rewards 8 Credit and/or $20 Reward when AutoZone imposed new conditions retroactively to the 9 relevant purchases. (Clawson 79:25-80:25.) Once again, this is a common issue.

10 Because the evidence concerning the formation of the relevant contracts, 11 performance by members of Subclass 1, and AutoZone’s breach are materially identical, 12 these are all common issues. So too is the fact of damages, since all class members lost a 13 Reward or Reward Credit. Differences in individual damages do not defeat predominance.
14 See, e.g., Marler, supra, 199 Cal.App.4th at 1463.

15 AutoZone’s stated “Terms and Conditions” defense also presents common issues.
16 AutoZone concedes none of the class members actually signed or otherwise expressly 17 agreed to its Terms and Conditions. (Yohalem Decl., Ex. I; Clawson 40:13-19; 183:13-21; 18 Pawlak 32:9-34:1). Accordingly, the Terms and Conditions are not part of AutoZone’s 19 contractual relationship with its customers. C9 Ventures v. SVC-West, L.P. (2012) 202 20 Cal.App.4th 1483, 1500 (refusing to enforce indemnification provisions contained on an 21 unsigned, but paid invoice); Expeditors Int’l. v. Official Creditors Comm. of CFLC, Inc. (In 22 re CFLC, Inc.) (9th Cir. 1999) 166 F.3d 1012, 1018 (applying California law, refusing to 23 enforce unsigned provision on the back of an invoice despite years of business with the 24 same form invoice); Transwestern Pipeline Co. v. Monsanto Co. (1996) 46 Cal.App.4th 25 502, 516 (finding that a seller's terms limiting liability were not part of the agreement with 26 the purchaser, despite express statements on the seller's invoices that acceptance was 27 conditioned on assent to those terms, because the purchaser “never expressed such 28 assent”). In any event, the relevant conduct is the same and the issue is common.

1 Moreover, even if the Terms and Conditions were a part of AutoZone’s contractual 2 relationship with its customers, this hypothetical defense also presents common, not 3 individual, issues and would not allow AutoZone to unilaterally take away the benefits its 4 customers had earned through their purchases. Under California law, a contractual right to 5 unilaterally modify a contract is limited by the duty of good faith and fair dealing, which 6 specifically “precludes amendments that operate retroactively to impair accrued rights.” 7 Cobb v. Ironwood Country Club, (2015) 233 Cal.App.4th 960, 963 (emphasis added).
8 Moreover, terms within a contract of adhesion that “effectively insulate the drafting party 9 from liability” are unconscionable. Sonic-Calabasas A, Inc. v. Moreno, (2013) 57 Cal.4th 10 1109, 1171. Here, the Terms and Conditions, whatever their significance, are the same for 11 all class members. (Yohalem Decl., Ex. D at Amended Answer to Interrog. 10). Thus, 12 application of the foregoing legal principles creates common issues.

13 2. Consumer Legal Remedies Act (Third Cause of Action)

14 Plaintiffs satisfy the predominance requirement for both subclasses with respect to 15 their CLRA claim. To recover under the CLRA, a Plaintiff must show a violation of the 16 CLRA which causes damages. See Cal. Civ. Code. § 1780. Plaintiffs claim AutoZone’s 17 bait and switch violated sections 1770(a)(13); (14); (16) and (17) of the CLRA, and, if the 18 Terms and Conditions were part their contract, section 1770(a)(19). Plaintiffs’ subclasses 19 account for any differences AutoZone’s attempted notice might create. Within each 20 subclass, each of these elements presents common questions.

21 First, as AutoZone’s advertising message was “basically the same,” whether it 22 violated the CLRA will be a common question within both subclasses. (Yohalem Decl., 23 Ex. F; Clawson 17:22-18:13; 193:11-18; Pawlak 22:10-23:4.). Whether a representation 24 is deceptive under the CLRA is an objective question, measured by “whether it is likely to 25 mislead a reasonable consumer.” See, e.g., Colgan v. Leatherman Tool Group, Inc. (2006)
26 135 Cal.App.4th 663, 680; In re ConAgra Foods, Inc. (C.D.Cal. 2015) 90 F. Supp. 3d 919, 27 983. In addition, by imposing undisclosed conditions in order to earn and redeem a $20 28 Reward which could only be fulfilled subsequent to purchases, AutoZone violated section

1 1770(a)(17). In any event, the same objective analysis applied to the same common 2 evidence will yield the same common answer within each subclass.

3 Second, the issue of damages is common for both subclasses. All members of both 4 subclasses lost something, either $20 Rewards or Reward Credits, and losing something is 5 all that is required. See, e.g., McAdams v. Monier, Inc. (2010) 182 Cal.App.4th 174, 186-6 187 (reversing denial of class certification under CLRA despite differences in damages 7 where class-wide damages all “stem from the same source” of non-disclosure); Kizer v.
8 Tristar Risk Management (2017) 13 Cal.App.5th 830, 841-842.

9 Third, the issue of causation is common for both subclasses. Plaintiffs are “entitled 10 to show that [Defendant’s] alleged deceptive conduct caused the same damage to the class 11 by showing that the alleged misrepresentation was material.” Steroid Hormone Product 12 Cases (2010) 181 Cal.App.4th 145, 156; see also Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co. v.
13 Superior Court (2002) 97 Cal.App.4th 1282, 1292 (“Plaintiff may establish causation as to 14 each [class member] by showing materiality as to all”). A representation “is deemed 15 material if a reasonable man would attach importance to its existence or nonexistence in 16 determining his choice of action in the transaction in question.” Id., at 156-157.

17 Here, AutoZone concedes that that its offer of a $20 Reward was designed to 18 encourage customers to make purchases at AutoZone, that “an ordinary customer would 19 attach importance to the reward offering that AutoZone gives them,” and that the 20 timeframe to earn and redeem Rewards “would be important for any customer to 21 consider.” (Clawson 17:6-18:2, 115:20-116:11; Pawlak 137:15-138:8; 139:12-140:8).

22 This common proof establishes causation on a class-wide basis for both subclasses.
23 Steroid Hormone Product Cases, supra, 181 Cal.App.4th at 157; see also Guido v.
24 L’Oreal, USA, Inc. (C.D.Cal. July 1, 2013, No. CV CV 11-1067 CAS (JCx)) 2013
25 U.S.Dist.LEXIS 94031, at *28.). These common issues predominate.

26 3. Unfair Competition and False Advertising (Fourth and Fifth 27 Causes of Action)

28 AutoZone’s deceptive conduct also satisfies the predominance requirements for the Unfair Competition and False Advertising laws. “[T]o state a claim under either the UCL

1 or the false advertising law, based on false advertising or promotional practices, it is 2 necessary only to show that members of the public are likely to be deceived.” In re 3 Tobacco II Cases (2009) 46 Cal.4th 298, 312. A claim is viable even if some members of 4 the public are not deceived. Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., supra, 97 Cal.App.4th at 5 1292 (certifying class despite evidence that defendant has “warned purchasers and its 6 agents” of the allegedly fraudulent conduct); In re Tobacco II Cases (2009) 46 Cal.4th 7 298, 312 citing Kasky v. Nike, Inc. (2002) 27 Cal.4th 939, 951; see also McAdams v.
8 Monier, Inc. (2010) 182 Cal.App.4th 174, 192 (recognizing that “individualized proof of 9 reliance and injury is not required for nonrepresentative class members” and reversing 10 denial of class certification on UCL claim) (emphasis in original).

11 As with claims under the CLRA, establishing that a representation was deceptive 12 under these laws is determined by a “reasonable consumer” test and not the subjective 13 experiences of individual customers. Colgan, supra, 135 Cal.App.4th at 680. The issue of 14 whether a reasonable consumer would be deceived is a common issue that predominates.
15 Plaintiffs also can establish a violation of the UCL based on AutoZone’s violations of the 16 CLRA, which, as shown above, also are common and predominate. Gutierrez v. Carmax 17 Auto Superstore (2018) 19 Cal.App.5th 1234, 1265.

18 Plaintiffs need only establish their own damages caused by AutoZone’s violations 19 to represent a class. In re Tobacco II Cases, supra, 46 Cal.4th at 328. Plaintiffs made 20 purchases and lost out on a $20 Reward as a result of AutoZone’s deceptive conduct.
21 (Yohalem Decl., Ex. Y; Shenkman Decl. at ¶¶ 5-10; Hughes Decl. at ¶¶ 5-8; Pawlak 22 122:23-123:4.) AutoZone has acknowledged that such Rewards were the “property of the 23 people who were entitled to use the rewards.” (Clawson 107:7-11). Accordingly, 24 Plaintiffs were damaged. To bring class-wide claims under these statutes, Plaintiffs need 25 not show either causation or actual damages on behalf of the class. Steroid Hormone
26 Product Cases, supra, 181 Cal.App.4th at 155 (certifying classes under FAL and UCL 27 statutes and recognizing restitution was appropriate of any funds the defendant “may 28 have...acquired by means of” its violations of these statutes).

1 The UCL and FAL allow for restitution and injunctive relief, but not damages. Cal.
2 Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203; 17535; In re Tobacco II Cases, supra, 46 Cal.4th at 312.
3 Injunctive relief is proper where “a threat that the misconduct to be enjoined is likely to be 4 repeated in the future.” Madrid v. Perot Systems Corp. (2005) 130 Cal.App.4th 440, 465.
5 Here, AutoZone continues to deceptively market its Rewards Program. (Pawlak 190:8-6 202:12; Yohalem Decl., at ¶¶ 27-36, Ex. X.) Class-wide restitution is warranted if 7 Plaintiffs can show “the existence of a ‘measurable amount’ of restitution, supported by 8 the evidence.” Vioxx Cases, supra, 180 Cal.App.4th at 136. Here, AutoZone’s records 9 detail expired rewards and credits, which can be used to determine a “measurable amount” 10 of restitution. (Pawlak 121:2-6.) As with similar cases of consumer misrepresentation, 11 this case warrants certification of Plaintiffs’ UCL and FAL claims. McAdams, supra, 182
12 Cal.App.4th at 192 (reversing denial of class certification on UCL claims where defendant 13 failed to disclose defects to consumers); Steroid Hormone Product Cases, supra, 181 14 Cal.App.4th at 155; Massachusetts Mutual, supra, 97 Cal.App.4th at 1291.

15 4. Fraud (Sixth Cause of Action)

16 Common issues also predominate for Plaintiffs’ common law fraud claim with 17 respect to Subclass 1, since AutoZone’s change to its program and its impending “impact 18 to Credit and Reward Balances” was widely contemplated, but not disclosed for years 19 prior. (E.g. Yohalem Decl., Ex. T at 81071.) California courts have long recognized that 20 common law fraud claims may lend themselves to the class action device where they may 21 be proved through common proof. Vasquez, supra, 4 Cal.3d at 811-812; Marler, supra, 22 199 Cal.App.4th at 1463-1464 (reversing and remanding denial of class certification on 23 common law fraud claim.) Here, all of the necessary elements of fraud may be proven on a 24 class-wide basis through common evidence. Since AutoZone made the same material 25 representations, the truth or falsity of the representations will be the same for all subclass 26 members. Since, the relevant advertisements and decision to change the Rewards Program 27 were made at the corporate level, the scienter requirements for fraud will be the same for 28 the entire subclass. (Pawlak 14:14-20:14; 45:21-46:9.) Finally, as with the CLRA claims,

1 reliance may be proved on a class-wide basis through common proof based on the 2 materiality of AutoZone’s misrepresentations. Vasquez, supra, 4 Cal.3d at 811-812.

3 D. Plaintiffs Satisfy Typicality And Adequacy

4 Plaintiffs satisfy the typicality and adequacy requirements for class certification.
5 Typicality is satisfied if the “class representative has claims or defenses typical of the 6 class.” Fireside Bank v. Superior Court (2007) 40 Cal.4th 1069, 1090-1091. This does not 7 require that the class representatives have “identical interests with the class members,” 8 only that they be “similarly situated.” Classen v. Weller (1983) 145 Cal.App.3d 27, 46
9 (emphasis in original). Plaintiffs were exposed to the same advertising message as both 10 subclasses and based on this message, they made purchases for which their Reward Credits 11 expired. (Yohalem Decl., Ex. Y; Shenkman Decl. ¶¶ 5-10; Hughes Decl. 5-8.) They made 12 such purchases both before AutoZone provided any purported notice of its National Plan 13 Conversion and after AutoZone allegedly provided notice of its National Plan Conversion.
14 (Id.) This satisfies the typicality requirement for both subclasses. McAdams, supra, 182 15 Cal.App.4th at 186-187. (Plaintiffs proper representatives where they were members of 16 only one of four categories of purchasers of product, but with respect to all purchasers, 17 Defendant failed to disclose material facts). The fact that Plaintiffs, a married couple, 18 shared an account does not change things or make them atypical. (Clawson 45:20-48:6; 19 Pawlak 37:22-38:7.)

20 Plaintiffs and their counsel also are adequate representatives who have and will 21 continue to vigorously represent the class' interests. See, e.g., Espejo v. The Copley Press, 22 Inc. (2017) 13 Cal.App.5th 329, 352-353 (adequacy exists where Plaintiffs’ interests not 23 antagonistic to the class and Plaintiffs and their counsel could “adequately represent the 24 class by vigorously and tenaciously protecting the class members’ interests”). Plaintiffs 25 and their counsel have aggressively pursued this case for two years, won motion practice 26 in federal and state court, reviewed hundreds of thousands of pages of documents, and 27 conducted and defended multiple depositions. (Yohalem Decl. ¶ 3; Lapine Decl., ¶ 2.) 28 Plaintiffs, who closely follow this case, bring it to see justice done for the millions of 1 Californian, who, like themselves, made purchases from AutoZone under false pretenses.

2 (Shenkman Decl. ¶¶ 14-17; Hughes Decl. ¶¶ 9-11.) Moreover, both class firms have high-3 stakes litigation experience, including class actions and mass torts, and have the resources 4 to pursue this case. (Yohalem Decl. ¶¶ 39-48; Bonder Decl. at ¶ 2; Lapine Decl. ¶3.).

5 In the interests of full transparency, Waskowski Johnson Yohalem LLP (“WJY”), 6 one of the class firms, had a prior co-counseling relationship with Shenkman & Hughes 7 PC, the class representatives’ firm. That case is over and did not result in any revenue for 8 either firm. (Yohalem Decl. ¶¶ 50-57; Shenkman Decl. ¶¶ 19-24.) Mr. Yohalem also 9 briefly co-counseled with Shenkman & Hughes PC in another case which did not result in 10 any revenue while he was an associate at his former firm, Scandaglia & Ryan. (Yohalem 11 Decl. ¶¶ 58-60; Shenkman Decl. ¶ 25-26.) WJY and Shenkman & Hughes’ practices now 12 differ significantly and it is unlikely they will co-counsel again in the foreseeable future.
13 (Yohalem Decl. ¶ 63; Shenkman Decl. ¶¶27-29.) In particular, Shenkman & Hughes PC
14 now focuses on remedying violations of the California Voting Rights Act, a California-15 specific subject matter for which it has received much acclaim, but with which WJY, an 16 Illinois firm that practices primarily commercial litigation has no involvement or 17 experience. (Yohalem Decl ¶ 63; Shenkman Decl. ¶ 27-29.). Yohalem and Shenkman 18 knew each other from their overlapping time attending Columbia Law School and have 19 remained in touch. (Id.) Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman LLP (“RMS”), the other class firm, 20 has no prior relationship with Shenkman & Hughes PC or its principals. (Lapine Decl.
21 ¶4.).

22 This limited prior co-counsel relationship is far from an ongoing close business 23 relationship that might pose an adequacy issue or make Plaintiffs unable to protect the 24 interests of the class. See, Richmond, supra, 29 Cal.3d at 470 (“only a conflict that goes to 25 the very subject matter of the litigation will defeat a party’s claim of representative 26 status”); compare Apple Computer, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 126 Cal.App.4th 1253, 27 1275 (disqualifying counsel because of a “close business association” where class 28 representative had been co-counsel in 13 other cases, including 6 active cases and where

1 class representative's own firm was initially co-counsel in the same proceeding).⁴

2 E. The Class Device Is Superior to Any Conceivable Alternative

3 Lastly, here, there are "substantial benefits from certification that render proceeding 4 as a class superior to the alternatives" as required for non-CLRA claims. See, e.g., Brinker, 5 supra, 53 Cal.4th at 1021. As set forth in Plaintiffs' Trial Plan, there are millions of small-6 dollar claims that can be decided on a class-wide basis by applying objective criteria to 7 common evidence, namely AutoZone's class-wide representations, which AutoZone has 8 conceded were material. (see Trial Plan, filed concurrently.) Class-wide damages for each 9 subclass can be calculated based on AutoZone's records; this protects AutoZone's due 10 process rights. Bell v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (2004) 115 Cal.App.4th 715, 752-753; 11 Bruno v. Super. Ct. (1981) 127 Cal.App.3d 120, 128-129. Accordingly, this Court should 12 certify both subclasses under California's longstanding rule that "[g]enerally, a class suit is 13 appropriate when numerous parties suffer injury of insufficient size to warrant individual 14 action and when denial of class relief would result in unjust advantage to the wrongdoer" 15 Ghazaryan v. Diva Limousine, Ltd. (2008) 169 Cal.App.4th 1524, 1537.

16 IV. CONCLUSION

17 For the reasons stated above, Plaintiffs request that the Court certify their proposed 18 subclasses.
